

Contents

Baran never wrote chapter headings for The Political Economy of Growth; this table of contents therefore is only a suggested one. It may however help readers to find their way around the book.

- Preface to the First Edition 13
- Foreword to 1962 Printing 19
- 1 Consumer sovereignty and the liberal and conservative attitudes to monopoly capitalism 19
- 2 Clarification of the nature of the surplus, waste and poverty 28
- 3 Alternatives for the underdeveloped countries 37
- 4 Some problems of socialist construction 44
- Introduction 59
- Some Suggestions for Further Reading 103

THE POLITICAL ECONOMY OF GROWTH

One A General View

- 1 The growth of political economy and the crises of capitalism 107
- 2 Decolonization and the growth of the socialist challenge 117
- 3 Economics in league with imperialism 123
- 4 The definition and measurement of growth 127

Two The Concept of the Economic Surplus

- 1 Actual and potential economic surplus 132
- 2 Rationality and waste 134
- 3 Productive and unproductive labour 143
- 4 Planned economic surplus 155

Three Standstill and Movement Under Monopoly Capitalism, I

- 1 The classical economists' view of capitalist growth 158

8 Contents

- 2 Use of resources in the age of monopoly capitalism 165
  - 3 The surplus under monopoly capitalism 170
  - 4 Investment, technical progress, and population growth 178
  - 5 The use of the surplus in competitive capitalism 191
  - 6 Investment and excess capacity under monopoly capitalism 196
  - 7 Capitalism once progressive now retrograde 207
- Four Standstill and Movement Under Monopoly Capitalism, II*
- 1 Possibilities of surplus absorption: consumption and unproductive labour 209
  - 2 The role of the state in monopoly capitalism 215
  - 3 Possible state action to maintain demand 225
  - 4 Foreign trade and investment and imperialist rivalry 235
  - 5 Foreign economic relations, labour aristocracy, and the full significance of imperialism 243
  - 6 Short-term stabilization 248
  - 7 Inflation, taxation, and the expanding surplus 252
  - 8 Imperialism and War 258
- Five On the Roots of Backwardness*
- 1 The common historical roots of capitalist development and underdevelopment 265
  - 2 The case of Indian underdevelopment 277
  - 3 The case of Japanese development 285
  - 4 The strangulation of development 298
- Six Towards a Morphology of Backwardness, I*
- 1 The size and utilization of the surplus in underdeveloped countries; agricultural revolution and counter-revolution, and the illusion of land reform 300
  - 2 Non-agricultural sectors (a): Merchants and money-lenders 308
  - 3 Non-agricultural sectors (b): industry; the failure of independent capitalist industrialization 312
  - 4 Non-agricultural sectors (c): foreign enterprise (mining) 317

5	The direct impact of foreign investment: alleged benefits: (i) and (ii)	325
6	The indirect impact of foreign capital: alleged benefits (iii)	332
7	Foreign capital, social structure and the restriction of industrialization	337
8	The official support of private capital	342
Seven	Towards a Morphology of Backwardness, II
1	Non-agricultural sectors (d): the state and alleged benefits of foreign investment (iv)	345
2	Foreign investment and the policy of the state – comprador régimes	350
3	Foreign investment and state expenditure in New-Deal régimes	366
4	Corollary (i): potential surplus is large. The illusion of the terms of trade	375
5	Corollary (ii): the fallacy of the lack of entrepreneurship	384
6	Corollary (iii): the three fallacies of Malthusianism	388
Eight	The Steep Ascent
1	The essential social revolution encounters the hostility of imperialism	402
2	Social revolution; the direct effects of imperialist foreign policy: war, cold war, and the cost to socialist countries	410
3	The economic tasks and problems of the social revolution; towards planned economic surplus	416
4	Central issues of socialist economic construction (i): the relations of industry and agriculture	428
5	Central issues of socialist economic construction (ii): producer and consumer goods	443
6	Central issues of socialist economic construction (iii): capital-intensive or labour-intensive methods of production	445
7	Foreign economic relations of the socialist economy	448
	Index	465

10 Contents

Tables

- 1 Industrial concentration in the United States of America 73
- 2 World income distribution in 1969 75
- 3 World income distribution in 1949 267
- 4 Dividends of Dutch corporations 1922-37 378
- 5 Earnings of U.S. enterprises at home and in underdeveloped countries 379
- 6 Population densities 390
- 7 Consumption of energy, and national income 391

Figure

- Developed and underdeveloped countries in the capitalist system 87